Consumer smartphones cost up to 50% more than rugged devices over a five-year period***

---

Clinical mobility is transforming healthcare delivery, but device selection and management are key. Consumer smartphones are expensive to manage over the long term and present risks to patient care.

Consumer smartphones aren't designed for clinical environments:

Infection risks

- Hard to disinfect and can increase the spread of healthcare-associated infections (HAIs)

Downtime

- Device failure means staff workarounds that can lead to dangerous errors

IT management

- A minefield for IT to monitor, manage and secure

Data Security

- Potential patient data leaks and regulatory violations

Device certifications

- Missing applications certified for healthcare

Failure rates of consumer devices are 2.9x higher than rugged ones.

Maximize your return-on-investment

Zebra enterprise-grade mobile devices are purpose-built to reduce the risk of infections, increase patient safety and improve workforce efficiency.

Infection control

- Disinfectant-ready to meet the highest standards

Unmatched reliability

- All-day-long battery performance means staff are properly equipped 24/7

Easy IT management

- Increase management, control and visibility with Mobility DNA software tools

Rigorous data security

- Enable data encryption and application permissions, and prevents access by unauthorized users

Software certifications

- Ensure regulatory compliance

Equip your staff with purpose-built healthcare devices that provide increased infection control, reduced downtime and a lower total cost of ownership.
